Dare Greatly - Citizenship

NAME _____ Date _____

CITIZENSHIP

26th President of the United States gave a speech in 1910 emphasizing that the success of a republic depended on the quality and character of it's people. It is better to stumble than to do nothing or to sit by and criticize those that are "in the arena" he explained. "It is not the critic who counts; not the man who points out how the strong man stumbles. The credit belongs to the man who is actually in the arena... if he fails, he at least fails while daring greatly..."
